Jubilee manager sees future very positive

BY MARY G. SEILEY
Jubilee Joe — that gargantuan, twinkling, smiling Lakeshore alligator who beckons gamblers down to Bayou Caddy — has a few more wrinkles than expected for a one-year-old.

The 10-story tall creature on Highway 90 no doubt would agree with management on why: it was a tougher year than expected.

But, says Jubilee's general manager, John Kingsbury, "the first year is always tough." For the second year, he says, "we feel we know what we need to do to be the success we know we will be."

By many marks, the Lakeshore casino already is a success for the county. It employs between 712 and 720 workers, mostly Hancock County residents. Last year's payroll: $18 million.

In addition, it paid the county some $2 million in shared revenues during its first 12 months of operation.

Still, the alligator got off to a slippery start at the bayou, and it has taken the first year, says Kingsbury, to get his footing stabilized.

There have been debts past due, but there is good reason for that, says Kingsbury. And the alligator has almost dug himself out of the hole into the sun, he adds.

The casino's site, at the southern tip of Beach Boulevard, was under scrutiny shortly after Hancock County voters approved dockside gaming in December 1990.

Kingsbury, who was one of the principle scouts, said in an interview that the original concept for Jubilee was a fairly small operation that would grow as the industry grew. By "fairly small," Kingsbury says backers were talking in the $20-million-range.

"Nobody, I think, really understood, expected or believed that the industry was going to explode the way it did on the Coast. I think most people believed that it would grow, certainly, but I don't think anybody anticipated the explosion that occurred," said Kingsbury.

By the time Jubilee was on the drawing boards, however, the explosion had occurred — other investors were scrambling to secure sites and construct facilities that were far beyond the scope of "fairly small."

"...So it was decided we needed to get into the game on a much larger scale because of the competition that was already there. It would be difficult to grow with an industry which had already become full grown," Kingsbury said.

In May 1993, Alpha Hospitality Corp. was born, with primary shareholders Stanley Tollman and Monty Hundley, hotel and motel corporation principals, Kingsbury said. Alpha

St. George, Sycamore homes to be upgraded

BY MARY G. SEILEY
City officials are gearing up to launch a $350,000 housing rehabilitation project on St. George and Sycamore streets.

The project comes on the heels of a similar housing fix-up effort in which five rental properties on State Street have been upgraded.

The upcoming program is expected to cover repairs to 15 to 20 homes, under a grant from the state Department of Economie and Community Development.

Project coordinator Beth Ousley said Monday that potential participants are being screened to make sure they meet eligibility requirements. She expects actual work to begin by late spring or early summer.

Tentative plans call for packaging eight or 10 homes together for bidding purposes, with a single contractor selected for rehabilitating the group.

After the first phase is completed, the remaining homes would be dealt with in the same fashion.

The project essentially will be a grant to eligible homeowners, whose dwellings will be brought up to health and sanitation codes requirements.

Spring Style Show

The St. Stanislaus Key Club and Princess Shoppe will sponsor the sixth annual Spring Style Show on Wed., Mar. 8, 7 p.m. at the St. Stanislaus Mall. The show's theme is "Putting on the Glitz." Those in photo are, from left, Jody Montelaro, Anne Marie Cockfield, Rod Llanos and Jamie Schaefer. Tickets are $3 and may be purchased from SSC Key Club members, Princess Shoppe Board members, or by calling 467-9057. (SSC photo).

Homes upgraded

Several homes on St. George and Sycamore Streets will be upgraded as these homes were on State Street as part of the housing rehabilitation project under a grant from the state Department of Economic and Community Development. Potential participants are still being screened to make sure they meet eligibility requirements. Actual work is expected to begin by late spring or early summer. (Echo Staff photo by Mary G. Seiley)

Hwy. 90 crash leaves one dead Sunday

Officials are investigating a Sunday traffic accident at Henderson Point which claimed the life of a Long Beach man.

Authorities said Brian T. Mann, 28, of Long Beach died in the two-vehicle wreck east of the Bay St. Louis bridge. The driver of the second vehicle, Robert J. Doss, 27, of Gulfport, was admitted to Hancock Medical Center with minor injuries.

Doss reportedly was headed west on Highway 90 when he lost control of the Pontiac he was driving. Witnesses said his vehicle hit the curb and veered into the eastbound lanes, where Mann's truck stuck it.

Mann's vehicle flipped over several times and landed on its top, witnesses said.

"CUEVAS" QUOTES

By Ellis C. Cuevas

I know many of you thought parading was over for another year — wrong.

Some ten days from now the annual Waveland Civic Association's St. Patrick's Day parade is scheduled to roll through the streets of the City of Waveland.

The Waveland Civic Association's big event is very popular and appears to increase in size each year.

Jay Lagasse is the president of the Waveland Civic Association, and he would like to see the largest parade ever this year on March 11 in Waveland.

Entries for the parade are now being sought by the Civic Association.

An advertisement appears elsewhere in this issue of The Echo with particulars on how to become a part of the parade.

Entries are being sought, such as floats, trucks, cars, bicycles and marchers for the St. Patrick's parade.

During the Krewe of Nereids parade I normally watch from the route, that was until this year.

I was on one of the units of the parade this year. You sure get a different feeling from being in a parade instead of just viewing one.

I hope to see you at the St. Patrick's Day parade on Saturday, March 11 in Waveland.

I received a telephone call Tuesday from Uneeda Laitinen of Bay St. Louis, the publication relations director for WRANPS (Wildlife Rehabilitation and Nature Preservation Society). Their facility is in Pass Christian on Menge Avenue.

Laitinen reports the first pelican coated with oil had been captured in Hancock County on Monday afternoon.

The animal was on the pier of a Garden Island resident.

The pelican is now being treated.

It is possible that the pelican may have come from the Pascagoula spill area.

Anyone seeing a pelican or any wildlife down is asked to call WRANPS at 452-WILD or the Waveland Animal Shelter at 467-0230.

As I have mentioned several times before, it is great once again to see the pelicans return to our waters as they were when I was a youngster.

The waterfront without pelicans is just not the same.

We sure need to protect this part of our heritage, as pelicans have been here for hundreds and probably thousands of years.

So, I urge everyone to be on the lookout for pelicans or any other water fowl down and to give WRANPS or the Animal Shelter a call.

In keeping with many of the traditions of the area, fish fries are popular during the Lenten Season for many of the residents.

As an annual event, Tommy Longo is once again the chairman for the St. Clare's seafood dinners to be held on March 3, 17 and 31 at the church's cafeteria behind the church on Beach Boulevard, Waveland. The hours will be from 5 to 7:30 p.m.

The St. Clare event will offer fish, shrimp and oyster dinners and po-boys.

Prices are a donation of $5 each for adults and $2.50 for children.

In Bay St. Louis, Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church will sponsor seafood dinners on March 3, 10, 24 and 31 in the Bay Catholic Elementary cafeteria, Second Street, Bay St. Louis.

The hours are 5 to 7 p.m. for the OLG seafood dinners, and they are for a donation of $5 each. During the four nights there will also be various extras available.

If you like good seafood and want to get Mother out of the kitchen, you may want to try one of the seafood dinners.

By the way, take-outs are available, too.

THE PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

A Weekly Editorial
From Mississippi Economic Council

New prisons aren't enough to solve crime problem

In an August 1994 special session of the Legislature, $17 million was allocated for new prisons in an effort to fight the state's growing crime problem.

Most Mississippians agree that more prison space is badly needed; but now that the money to "lock 'em up and throw away the key" has been allocated, it's time for the Legislature to look for other measures that would bolster Mississippi's fight against crime.

Research by the Mississippi Economic Council has revealed major problems in the enforcement and administration of juvenile matters.

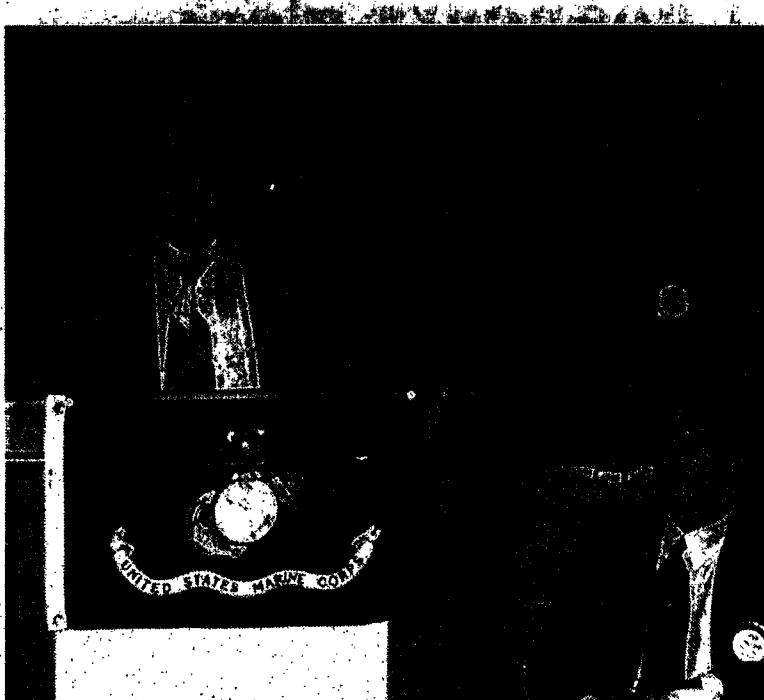

In Mississippi, law enforcement officials believe that at least half the crimes are committed by juveniles. That percentage rises in Hinds County to an estimated two-thirds of all crimes being committed by juveniles. Yet, even with these statistics, Mississippi has no statewide uniform juvenile court system.

Currently, youth court matters in Mississippi are administered by a diverse collection of presiding officers who hold office under various standards of experience and ability. Such a system is inefficient, inconsistent, and ineffective.

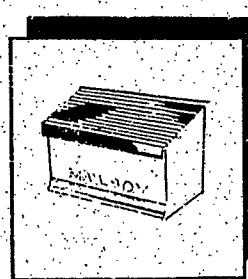

Now that the Legislature has taken the first stab at the crime problem by increasing prison capacity, it's time for another legislative step.

The Legislature should create a standard uniform family/juvenile court system.

Iwo Jima survivor

Leonard Neder, left, is introduced as the guest speaker at the Diamondhead Rotary Club on Iwo Jima Day and introduced by Jim Williams. Neder, a resident of Diamondhead, was a member of the United States Marine Corps who took the island and saw the raised American flag. He proceeded on with fighting and threw a grenade into what he thought was a foxhole, and it was a Japanese ammunition pile. He remembered nothing after he threw the grenade, and even his comrades thought he was dead, but somehow survived and spent six months and 10 days in a hospital recovering from his wounds. He was one among many Marines to receive a Purple Heart for heroic efforts at Iwo Jima. (Echo staff photo by Ellis C. Cuevas)

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Representatives feels leaders need to work with schools

Dear Editor,

If you believe as I do, that strong families are the foundation of a healthy society, you will be pleased to know last year's Legislature took an important step in improving the lives of Mississippi's children and their families for generations to come.

Each local school district in the state has been provided the resources to offer high school students a course in responsible parenting and family living, Family Dynamics.

Districts also have the opportunity to implement a caregiver training program for students who wish to pursue a career in caring for children while their parents work.

Together these course offerings mean our state's most valuable resource, our children, can get off to the best possible start in life.

Now is the time for parents and community leaders to make certain this investment in our future is utilized.

Work with your school district personnel to see these programs are in place in your community.

Stop by your local school district and look at the curriculum. Encourage your child and the children in your community to take advantage of these opportunities.

Working together we can make a difference.

Sincerely,
Eloise Scott
Representative
Tupelo, Miss.

IN CONGRESS

By Rep. Gene Taylor

If it's good enough for Congress, it should be good enough for the people

Lost in the barrage of legislation passed in recent weeks was a little known bill that would have helped millions of Americans keep their health insurance when changing jobs, just like ex-congressman.

Congress was given the chance to pass the legislation, which would have given American workers the same peace of mind members of congress have. But, you guessed it. Congress blew it. Speaker Gingrich's rhetoric about "accountability" and improving health insurance "portability" for all Americans appears to be just that, rhetoric.

Most South Mississippians may not be aware that if a congressman loses their job, they can continue their insurance health coverage by paying 100 percent of the cost. Voting against the bill were 222 Republicans and 23 Democrats. The bill was supported by 176 Democrats and 4 Republicans.

It is clearly apparent the highly touted "Contract With America" does not include a provision for treating the American citizen as well as Congress treats itself - and that is wrong.

Modeled after the House and Senate's own health plans, the bill aimed to help families continue their health insurance until covered under a new plan. Employees who leave a job could have kept their employer-provided health insurance indefinitely, at their own expense, just like former congressmen.

The bill pushed to eliminate time restrictions on the current Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act (COBRA) health protection plan. Current COBRA protection is limited to a maximum of between 18 and 36 months.

COBRA requires employers with 20 or more employees, who already offer insurance, to allow former employees and their families to continue to purchase insurance through the company's more economical group plan. More than two-thirds of all Americans are covered by COBRA if they decide to continue their health insurance when changing jobs.

Rather than become a drain on government insurance programs and business, the bill would have required workers, who wish to continue their health plan, to pay 100 percent of the insurance premium after leaving a job.

I just question that if the plan is good enough for Congress, why isn't it good enough for other people?

FROM THE SENATE

By Senator
Trent Lott

The nature of the Senate and the House

As the former whip in the House of Representatives and the current Majority Whip in the Senate, I quite often am asked to explain the differences between the two bodies of Congress and how they work.

Most people are interested in why the House is able to act so quickly and pass legislation at a faster pace than the Senate. It is a good civics question.

Our founding fathers indeed were visionary in the way they set up the two houses of Congress. One (the House of Representatives) was to be large and reflective of the population within the states. The other (the Senate) would be limited to two members from each state and would represent the states in a broader sense, with more involvement in national and foreign policy issues.

The Constitution guarantees to the House the initial responsibility for appropriations. The Senate has principal responsibility for the confirmation of Cabinet, Supreme Court and other Presidential appointees and the ratification of treaties.

The major difference between the two bodies derives purely from the size of each. Because the House has 435 members, it must have rules that limit to some degree the number of amendments that can be offered to bills and that limit the time of debate. Otherwise, the House would never get anything done.

On the other hand, because the Senate has only 100 members, there are very few rules that limit debate or restrict amendment. In fact, in the Senate any Senator can offer an amendment any time he or she wishes — on any subject — and talk as long as they want.

Senator C-Span viewers know well that there is one Senator, Robert Byrd of West Virginia, who takes full advantage of every opportunity to talk about everything he wants, at any length.

Except for final passage of legislation, most actions in the Senate occur by unanimous consent. This process simply allows legislation to come to the floor and amendments to be offered unless another Senator objects.

The only controlling mechanism in the Senate is cloture, the process by which debate may be brought to a close, but only with a three-fifths vote of the Senate.

When I served in the House, I found it to be a fast-moving, exhilarating and gregarious place to work. The Senate is much more formal and almost staid, but it has become clear to me that in the Senate, I can do more for individual Mississippians and our state as a whole.

For those who are watching the House of Representatives speed through their "Contract for America" 10-point agenda, I am certain it seems the Senate is quite slow and often frustrating. But that is what our founding fathers intended.

There is a tradition that on his return from France, Thomas Jefferson called George Washington to account at the breakfast table for having agreed to a second chamber in the Congress.

"Why," asked Washington, "did you pour that coffee into your saucer?"

"To cool it," Jefferson said. "Even so," said Washington, "we pour legislation into the senatorial saucer to cool it."

Senator Lott welcomes any questions and/or comments about this column. Please write to: Senator Trent Lott, 487 Russell Building, Washington, D.C. 20510 (Attention: Press Office).

Jubilee

Hospitality formed Alpha Gulf Coast Inc., a subsidiary that would do business as Bayou Caddy's Jubilee Casino.

"Up until then, the Tollman-Hundley group had operated hotels," not casinos, says Kingsbury. Now, Alpha Hospitality is in hot pursuit of other gaming ventures to put under its umbrella in addition to Jubilee. (See related story, page 7-A.)

The decision to build a larger casino, on a fast schedule, about doubled the project's cost, to the $40 million bracket.

The facility was ready to open in the fall of 1993 — except for one major step. The state Gaming Commission, under an avalanche of pending applications for casino operations, didn't finalize Jubilee's licensing until January 1994.

"We opened up with ... construction costs still outstanding as a result of our deciding to make it a much larger, more expensive property. And over the course of the first year we have just about completed paying off the two major contractors," said Kingsbury. Other pre-opening costs had to be dealt with as well.

"So, this first year has been one where we have tried to settle into our market, learn more precisely who we are and who our market is ... and of course we've been working very hard to pay off our pre-opening bills and we've come pretty close to getting it all behind us."

"The company is a very viable company. We are here to stay. The principals (of Alpha Hospitality Corp.) have a deep commitment to the project ... a deep and total commitment to make this project be a total success."

Meanwhile, Kingsbury has watched the Coast casino as a whole go through growing pains. "The industry itself has gone through some settling in, as is the case with most new industries — there are some who make it and some who don't; some who do very well and some who don't do very well."

For its part, Jubilee's backers see themselves nearly out of debt and gearing up to build a hotel it's wanted from the very start of the project. That's on the planning table now, he said. "That's not just a hope, it's a definite plan to build a hotel facility here at our property."

Like Casino Magic, the only other casino in Hancock County, Jubilee sees hotel accommodations as vastly extending the patron influx: people will come and stay for a few days, not drive in for a few hours.

That concept is what's going to cause the second part of the local explosion, Kingsbury believes, based on what he's experienced.

In 1969, Kingsbury was working with the opening of a 1,000-room hotel in Las Vegas, a facility which many knowledgeable people in the industry said was outlandishly large. It would, people thought, totally saturate the hotel market in Las Vegas, kill off small operators, and stand as a white elephant. Today, he notes, a 1,000-room hotel in Las Vegas is considered small.

On the Gulf Coast, the arrival of off-shore casinos is but step one, Kingsbury said. The lack of adequate hotel and motel rooms is a key factor in what he says is a temporary pause in the Coast casino industry's "metamorphosis."

Just wait, he says with a smile. "The hotels are the key. They will come ... and then the same kind of explosion will come" as occurred when the casino barges pulled in.

Because of Hancock County's topography, Kingsbury said, the possible addition of casinos in this county are highly limited. He doesn't expect others in the near future, due to the lack of viable remaining sites.

Meanwhile, he does expect there to be ramifications from the opening of land-based gaming in New Orleans — but Kingsbury sees it in a positive light.

The downtown gaming facility to the west, he said, will be another draw for tourists to visit New Orleans from afar. It probably won't be, however, a lure for Louisiana residents who don't want to venture into the city to gamble. Those gamblers, he said, most likely will continue to putter over to the Coast for the day.

Those out-of-towners who are lured to New Orleans, meanwhile, probably will venture over to the Coast during their stay, to check out not only the casinos but the other attractions of the area, he said.

"I see it as a win-win situation," said Kingsbury. Kingsbury was named as Jubilee's general manager last week. He had previously served as the casino's vice president of administration and finance, posts he will retain.

His more than 25 years experience in executive positions span hotel and casino operations, with senior assignments as executive vice president, general manager, director of finance, controller and consultant to major hotels and casinos in the U.S. and abroad.

Jubilee's chief executive officer, Thomas W. Aro, said in a statement that Kingsbury has "the demeanor and patience to make our casino successful in a gaming market that has become highly competitive."

will be repaired, and some energy efficiency work will be performed as well. While the project isn't a "cosmetic" construction program, it will include exterior painting, Ousley said.

Participants have been invited to two recent meetings where details were aired.

To be eligible, a participant must be a homeowner, and occupy the dwelling as a primary residence. Family income limits are set — for a four-person family, the limit is $24,250.

In addition, participants must contribute $300 toward the cost of required inspections.

Meanwhile, work is nearly complete on rehabilitation of five rental properties in the 300-block of State Street, under a separate program.

That work was done under a $68,494 Community Development Block Grant.

Widow sues Ford Motor

BY MARY G. SEILEY
The widow of Alvin Bernard Sr. has filed a $3 million lawsuit that claims a defective airbag caused Bernard's death in a minor traffic mishap in Biloxi.

Joan Bernard's action was filed in Hancock County Circuit against Ford Motor Co. and its local dealership, Charlie Henderson Ford.

According to the suit, Bernard was driving a Ford F-150 on Highway 90 when he struck the rear of a 1988 Chevrolet. Although the Aug. 31 accident caused "insignificant" damage to the truck, the driver's airbag inflated with such velocity that Bernard suffered massive, fatal injuries, the suit contends.

He died at the scene of the accident.

The suit seeks damages based on negligence, breach of warranty, liability and failure to warn of airbag defects.

IN AND AROUND DIAMONDHEAD

By Margaret Williamson

PARADE

Last Saturday at noon Diamondhead was overflowing with people eagerly awaiting the Krewe of Diamondhead's annual Mardi Gras parade, with monarchs Queen Lou Lamendola, gorgeous in gold, and King Henry Kibler, splendid in white, leading the way to the country club.

Congratulations to all the folks who worked so hard putting ideas and things together to enter and to some of the winners: Carl Adams and his Icecapades, the Tiki group, Diamondhead Garden Club's Cherry Blossoms, Ruth and Charlie Olivier's line dancers, all of those beautifully decorated golf carts and those adorable costumed dogs (the K-9 Krewe).

The parade was bigger and better than ever this year, and sunshine was the order of the day. Thanks, Chris Arnos, for putting it all together.

ACADEMY HAPPENINGS

Diamondhead Academy students, excelling and proving their talents again in the district art contest, sponsored by the Mississippi Private School Association include:

First place winners kindergartners Erin Smith and Kayla Whitley; first grader Kristin Abraham; second grader Lauren Peckham; fourth graders Heide Wisner, Danielle Dantin and Todd Farrar; and sixth grader Allie Palmero.

The second place winners were Kindergartners Leonie Blanchette and Talia Hamlin; second grader Whitney Bowne; third graders Brad Farrar and Joelle Kiefer; fourth graders Meagan Moran and Joe Munger; and fifth grader Mandie Nunez.

Pre-registration has started for next year, and an open house will be held at the school to welcome prospective parents on March 8 at 7 p.m.

In honor of Washington's birthday the forestry service planted a cherry bark oak on the grounds.

each Friday at 8 a.m. and 7 p.m. and also on Good Friday of Holy Week.

The Way of the Cross devotion is an adaptation of a custom widely observed by pilgrims to Jerusalem with each station commemorating a place associated with the Lord's Passion and death.

D'HEAD YOUTH

The Diamondhead Youth Organization will have a special sign-up for ball Sunday, March 5 from 1-3 p.m. at the community center.

Teams are being formed for boys and girls from 5-16 years. Players need to bring a parent/guardian with them to sign in and complete the necessary league forms.

A notarized copy of the player's birth certificate and social security number are required.

Registration fee is $40 for the first child and $30 for additional children.

THOUGHTS TO SHARE

"Dear Father, hear and bless thy beasts and singing birds, and guard with tenderness small things that have no words."

Congratulations to international environmental artist Robert "Bob" Songy of Bay St. Louis, who received a proclamation and was recognized for his paintings which "have brought worldwide attention to environmental issues which face our communities." We need to protect and preserve it at all cost for future generations.

Songy was honored on Valentine's Day because "his heart lies with the wonders and creatures that God has created and put on this earth, not only for us, but the many generations to come."

MY THOUGHTS

Real generosity is doing something nice for someone who will never find it out.

Be generous with, and love one another. Have a wonderful week.

Alpha Hospitality, Bally Entertainment sign letters of intent for new casino

Alpha Hospitality Corporation has announced that its Alpha Rising Sun Inc. subsidiary has entered into two letters of intent with subsidiaries of Bally Entertainment Corporation to develop and manage a casino and resort complex in the City of Rising Sun, Ohio County, Ind.

Alpha Hospitality Corporation owns and operates the Bayou Caddy's Jubilee Casino at Clermont Harbor in Lakeshore. The riverboat casino will dock on the Ohio River and serve the Cincinnati metropolitan area. Alpha Rising Sun Inc. will petition the Indiana Gaming Commission for permission to file amendments to its application in order to reflect the two letters of intent.

In addition to the operation of a casino riverboat, the proposed development project includes the creation of an extensive resort complex including a hotel, showroom pavilion, three restaurants and lounge facilities, day care center, tennis courts, marina recreational vehicle park and retail shopping facility. The total development cost for the project is anticipated to be $100 million.

Bally will initially acquire a 9.5 percent interest in Alpha Rising Sun Inc. However, Alpha intends to maintain an interest of not less than 50 percent on an ongoing basis.

Bally will lend the funds required for the project's pre-opening expenses and initial casino bankroll. The balance of the funds required will be supplied by third party financing plus equity contributions of Alpha and Bally.

Bally will be granted a 10-year management contract for the project with ten five-year renewals.

The application of Alpha Rising Sun Inc. for issuance of a gaming license for the project is presently pending before the Indiana Gaming Commission.

Alpha Hospitality Corporation recently announced that it has entered into an agreement for the acquisition of the Doc Holliday's Casino in Central City, Colorado, and has been selected as developer of a riverboat casino project by the City of Louisiana, Missouri. Alpha's hotel management subsidiary operates 20 hotels located throughout the United States.

Bally Entertainment Corporation is one of the world's foremost operators of casinos and casino hotel resorts. The company owns and operates three world-class casino hotel resorts in Atlantic City and Las Vegas, plans to re-open its dockside casino at its new location in Mississippi in June 1995, and expects to open its riverboat casino in New Orleans by mid-1995.

Megabucks

Jackpot increased

The state's most widely played and profitable slot system just added millions to its jackpot. Megabucks, created by IGT, a wholly owned subsidiary of International Game Technology, increased the starting amount of its top jackpot from $1 million to $3 million.

Slot players in Mississippi casinos will now have the opportunity to win a $3 million-plus jackpot for just a $3 wager.

Megabucks was the first wide-area progressive slot system in Mississippi, linking more than 300 machines in 30 casinos throughout the state. Since its debut in Mississippi in February 1993, Megabucks has paid out more than $9 million in primary jackpots. In April 1994, the Megabucks jackpot hit three times in the span of a month.

At casinos throughout Mississippi slot players can play the Megabucks progressive at the same time. The player's chances of winning are the same, regardless of location. After each Megabucks jackpot is awarded the meter is reset at $3 million.

IGT primary progressive jackpots are paid in annual installments.

Isle receives second economic excellence award

The Isle of Capri Casino-Biloxi was presented with its second Harrison County Economic Excellence Award at the annual Salute to Business and Industry meeting.

Each year the Chamber of Commerce and the Harrison County Development Commission honor local businesses and industries that have made substantial contributions to the Mississippi Gulf Coast in the areas of labor and management relations, community development and economic impact.

The presentation was held in conjunction with the chamber's three-day Business Expo at the Coast Coliseum and Convention Center.

"As a relatively new company on the Coast in an industry still in its infancy it is an honor to join the other recipients of this distinguished award."

"Also, being recognized two years in a row by community leaders with the Harrison County Economic Excellence Award confirms the Isle's commitment to remain a positive presence in the growth of our area," said Tim Hinkley, general manager of the Isle of Capri.

The Isle of Capri was selected as the winner in the largest business category for its sixable monetary investment to Point

Cadet — which will reach in excess of $90 million once the hotel is completed this year, progressive employee relations and recognition programs as well as its contributions to the quality of life and community development on the Mississippi Gulf Coast.

March programs set at Gulf Islands National Seashore

"Arts in The Marsh" is the theme for 1995's March program series at Gulf Islands National Seashore, superintendent Jerry Eubanks announced. Photo hikes, cast nets and sketching, as well as wildlife videography, are all programs available to help folks enjoy the outdoors as spring comes to the Gulf Coast.

Superintendent Eubanks reminds everyone these presentations last about one hour and can be seen free of charge in the Visitor Center. All March programs take place Sunday afternoons at 2 p.m. Davis Bayou and the William M. Colmer Visitor Center are off Hwy. 90 East in Ocean Springs.

With spring and summer approaching, now's the time to sharpen your vacation camera skills. Dust off the 35mm, your 110, or whatever and bring it to the Visitor Center Sunday, March 5.

At 2 p.m. 'Photo Hike' explores photo techniques and opportunities on the walkways around Davis Bayou. See how you can make better photo-memories during your next trip to a national park.

On Sunday, March 12, park rangers demonstrate the art and craft behind a Gulf Coast tradition. "How To Make A Cast Net" looks at a skill which combines knots and string into something that is part hobby and part way of life. Learn how to tie knots, space lines and repair holes in cast nets. Join this one-hour program in the Visitor Center at 2 p.m.

Geology of the coastal plain programs at Arboretum

Most of us in Southern Mississippi never miss them. Rocks that is. Southern Mississippi is covered by sediments deposited by water so deep that our rocks lie approximately 25,000 feet below our lawns.

For thousands of years ice and water and other erosive forces have created a unique geological environment. Stennis Space Center oceanographer Allen Lowrie will explore Mississippi geology in two upcoming events at The Crosby Arboretum in Picayune.

"Where Are the Rocks?" will be offered March 4 at 10 a.m. at The Crosby Arboretum Visitors Center. This illustrated lecture will be a "show and tell" session that will explore the dynamic forces at work in our area. Participants will be treated to an entertaining overview of the geology of southern Mississippi. Reservations by March 2.

On March 11 Dr. Lowrie will lead a field trip, "Looking for Rocks on the road to the Coast" from 8 a.m. until 1 p.m. During the trip from The Crosby Arboretum to the Gulf Coast Dr. Lowrie will explain how to read the visual geological records and will explain and interpret the forms and forces exhibited. Reservations by March 8.

Meet at the Arboretum parking lot to begin trip.

Each session is $5 for Arboretum members and $8 for non-members. Call (601) 799-2311 for reservations or more information.

Awards night

Awards night at Hancock North Central Elementary held a special honor for 6th graders Bradley Ladner and Lance Triplett, who were chosen by their teachers to sing the National Anthem accompanied by world-renowned classical guitarist Giovanni DeChiaro. Those in photo are, from left, Ladner, DeChiaro and Triplett. DeChiaro has played worldwide, including Carnegie Hall in New York and most recently in Rome for the Pope. He is a professor of guitar at the University of Southern Mississippi.

Coast Episcopal opens registration for 1995-96

Coast Episcopal School is now accepting registrations for the 1995-96 school year. Founded in 1950, Coast Episcopal is a private school offering instruction for pre-K through 12th grade students on two campuses.

Pre-school through fifth grades are taught at the Bay St. Louis campus located behind Christ Episcopal Church on Beach Blvd.

The Middle School (6th-8th grades) and High School (9th-12th) are located on Espy Avenue in Pass Christian.

Board of trustees chairman Marlene Saccoccia is enthusiastic about the future of Coast Episcopal.

"We are especially excited about the developments this year in our Middle School. For instance, we have begun an innovative advisory program for our middle schoolers.

"Faculty members have weekly meetings with small groups of students to discuss problems and topics of mutual interest, academic or otherwise. "In addition, this year we began a complete re-evaluation of our curriculum for kindergarten through 12th grades.

"We have also just launched a national search for a new headmaster, and we're very encouraged by our findings so far. We have always had a strong college preparatory program taught in small classes with attention to the individual student.

"We want to find a headmaster who will maintain this tradition and also challenge us with new ideas. At Coast Episcopal we are aware that preparing students for the 21st century means educating the whole child — intellectually, creatively, physically, emotionally and spiritually."

At the elementary level the Coast Episcopal curriculum emphasizes writing and thinking skills and offers, in addition to innovative mathematics and literature programs, instruction in science, art, physical education, Spanish, music and computer. In the middle school students study English, Latin, mathematics, history and science. As electives they may choose from Spanish, French, computer, music and art.

With a core curriculum of English, mathematics, history, French, Spanish and science, high school students may choose from a wide variety of courses, including calculus, AP English, AP biology, marine biology, advanced chemistry and physics. Electives this year have included classes in 20th century film, studio art and computer programming.

For information or to arrange an interview and a tour of the school, interested persons may call the school office at 452-9442.

Ship Island excursions begin spring operation

"Regularly scheduled excursion boat services to ship Island will begin Spring operations on Saturday, March 4, superintendent Jerry Eubanks announced.

Pan Isles Inc. of Gulfport is the official concessioner for the United States Department of the Interior, National Park Service, to provide daily passenger ferry service from the mainland to Ship Island.

"This service is provided so the public will have access to the recreational and historical resources located on Ship Island, a part of gulf Islands National Seashore," said Eubanks.

FISHIN' Y'ALL

By Jim Maness

It's time to go fishin' y'all.

Before I get into the fishin' scene this week I gotta tell y'all that I found the most promising job in the world. A job in a field that has an unlimited supply of work. A medical profession where 100% of the population needs help.

I know of no restrictions on practice nor of any medical school that teaches the subject. Man, this is OJT to the max. The profession — orthodontist for gnats.

Anybody who has been bitten by a gnat knows they have a serious overbite. Why else would they hurt so much when they bite?

On the fishing scene, the conditions are right for the huge-mouth bass to really pig out on their favorite foods to get ready for their spring time "love-in." So, you might wanna start getting your fresh water gear in top shape 'cause the bass are just about ready for you to "try" and catch them.

Since the huge-mouth bass will be in a feeding mood, you can guess that the other fresh water fish are gonna be just as hungry. The perch will be out in force looking for their favorites, worms, crickets and grass shrimp. These little guys make for ideal family fun in the outdoors. All you need is a cane pole, some line, a small hook, a small split shot sinker and some bait.

Past history has shown the perch really go ape for grass shrimp. Since there is no grass shrimp store in the area, maybe I should give you some idea of where to get some grass shrimp. And since a grass shrimp store is out of the question Plan B is called for.

To implement Plan B you are gonna need a fine mesh dip net (sometimes called a scoop net) with a long handle. A small can or container will be necessary to put the grass shrimp in after you catch them, some 0000 hooks and a place to catch grass shrimp.

Bet you didn't now that grass shrimp usually live in and around grass? No, huh! Anyway, take your fine mesh, long-handled dip net and scoop it along the edge of a ditch or small bayou or around the edges of a culvert, like those that go under Beach Blvd.

You might wanna do the scooping without help from the kids. You see, the kids will have great fun digging in all of the other critters that you will catch in your scoop net.

Once you have a mess of grass shrimp, you are ready to go after the perch. By the way, don't worry about keeping the grass shrimp alive as they work just as well dead as they do alive. It has something to do with the smell they give off that the perch seem to go ape over.

So nobody is misled, and you should know that grass shrimp seldom, if ever, grow larger than one inch long. Don't expect to catch grass shrimp that will go 25 to 30 count. Grass shrimp are a different species that the ones you normally eat.

By the way, the 0000 hooks are useful if you want to use gnats for bait to catch grass shrimp. Bet you haven't done that before.

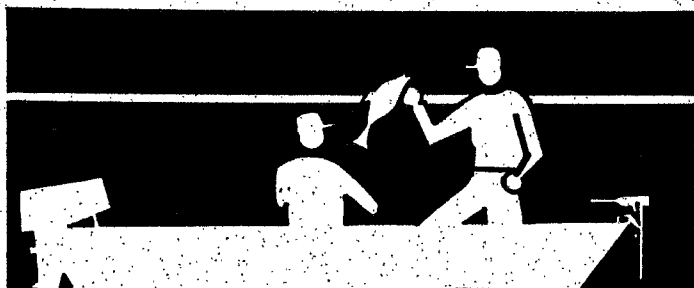

The salt water scene is starting to pick up earlier than usual this year. I have some reports that some really big specks are starting to show up in the area around Nine Mile Bayou in the Louisiana Marsh.

You might wanna check with LaFrance Fish Camp in Ansley for more information about "where they biting" in the Marsh. One point to remember, if you ever ask for information about "where they biting" at LaFrance, never do this while under the "Fishin' Tale Oak" as some of the stories told under this tree can have their veracity questioned.

This week's wonderful wise words: Now is the time to become a gnat orthodontist before the government finds out.

Does 0 pound test line work best for 0000 gnat hooks, Turtle?

Wildcats state champs

Verdun and Powell sisters make all-state

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II
The Pearl River Community College men's basketball team won the state championship tournament in Decatur last week. It was the Cats' first state championship team since 1965. Conley Verdun, of Franklin, La., was named to the 1995 Mississippi Association of Community and Junior Colleges All-State basketball team. He averaged 27 points per game. Donnie Johnson, a freshman center, was named to the second team for the Cats.

The Wildcats will start playing the Region 23 National tournament next week.

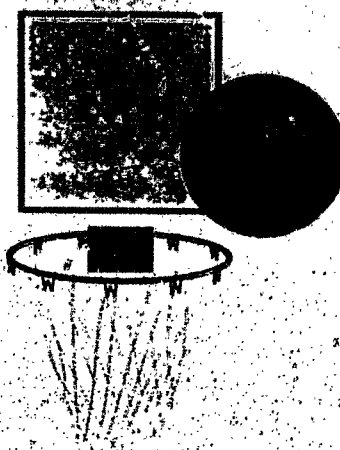

All-American Elaine Powell of the Pearl River Lady Wildcats has been named first team All-State on the girls basketball team. Powell led the nation with a 31-point average per game. Her older sister, Karen Powell, also made the elite first team list.

The Lady Cats were the division champs but lost the first game of the state tourney to eventual champ Northwest.

The Lady Cats begin play in the Region 23 national tourney next week at Mississippi College.

Caronica Debose made the second team all-state list for the Lady Cats.

Students invited to statewide conference

All Mississippi students in grades 7-12, who are active members of alcohol/drug/highway safety awareness clubs, are invited to the seventh annual Teens on the Move safety conference.

The April 6 event will be held in the Mississippi Coliseum, Jackson, and is designed to be a reward for students who are drug-free and taking an active role in promoting highway safety.

Following the theme "Stayin' Alive in '95," this motivational educational and informational conference begins at 8:30 a.m. and concludes at 3 p.m.

Presenters will be John W. Alston, a classroom teacher, multicultural consultant, psychologist, compelling and practical public speaker, world traveler and author, and Randy Judkins, a former character consultant for Hollywood's Tri-Star Pictures and faculty member of Barnum & Bailey's Clown College who has been featured in various areas of the world and regarded as one of the nation's most exciting and entertaining speakers.

During lunch, there will be carnival games and a sample Project Graduation showcase.

"Last year, this conference attracted a record 3,653 participants," said Donald O'Carroll, executive director of the Mississippi Division of Public Safety Planning which, along with Pizza Hut and Pepsi Cola, is sponsoring the event.

"It's one of the largest conferences of its type in the nation, bringing together teenagers taking a firm stand on being drug-free and driving safely at a time when teenage drug abuse and motor vehicle crashes caused by teenagers are major problems."

Registration fee is $7 per student plus a canned food item brought to the conference for donation to the Mississippi Food Network. Lunch and a t-shirt are included in the cost. The registration fee is not required for chaperones.

"A maximum of 25 students per school will be accepted, and three adult chaperones per 25 students or one chaperone for every eight students must attend," said Harriet Mauney, Public Safety Planning's youth programs coordinator.

"Because attendance will be limited to 3,500, it's recommended that schools register as soon as possible. The absolute deadline, if space is still available, is March 31."

Checks should be made payable to the University of Southern Mississippi and sent to Harriet Mauney, Division of Public Safety Planning, Box 23039, Jackson 39225-3039. Mauney may be contacted by telephone at 369-7834.

March is 'Wildfire Season'

Special to The Echo

The month of March is wildfire prevention month. Randy Watkins of the Mississippi Forestry Commission stated that March is traditionally the worst time of the year in South Mississippi for damaging wildfires.

He said the low humidities and high winds have the potential to create larger wildfires which are more dangerous. County Forester Mark Jamieson said the March wildfires are harder to suppress and are a greater threat to the safety of forest fire fighters.

Watkins state, "Although wildfire numbers are decreasing there is a greater chance for damage to the homes that are constructed with woodland type settings which are very popular today as people are building farther away from the urban areas."

Mark Jamieson expressed a warning for people in rural areas to not burn leaves or trash on days when the winds are high. Jamieson said about 57 wildfires have already occurred in Hancock County this year. "Many of our wildfires are started by arsonists," says County Forester Mark Jamieson. Jamieson also told of the $500 reward offered by the Mississippi Forestry Association to people submitting information which leads to the conviction of woods arsonists.

Jamieson said people could report wildfires to forestry officials by dialing a toll free number 1-800-240-5161.

Oceanography spokesman visits Stennis

Former energy secretary Admiral James D. Watkins visited the Naval oceanography activities and educational organizations at the Stennis Space Center.

Watkins is president of both Joint Oceanographic Institutions Inc. and the Consortium for Oceanographic Research and Education.

In this dual capacity, he is the chief spokesman for educational and research institutions around the country.

During his Stennis visit, he toured the education and research facilities of the University of Southern Mississippi and Mississippi State University and the Mississippi Center of Higher Learning.

On Friday he was scheduled to visit the Trinity Marine Group's Hatler Marine Shipyard at Moss Point. There he toured new ships being built for the Navy and for Navy-supported research installations.

Long a champion of funding for important science and technology, he now promotes advances in oceanography for national security, commerce, and educational advantage.

He chose to visit the Mississippi Gulf Coast because of its strong reputation in ocean research, shipbuilding and naval oceanography.

The Joint Oceanographic

Institutions Inc. represent the premier ocean research institutions in the country and the world.

Since its establishment in 1976, JOI has developed significant experience and capability in the internationalization of ocean science through both their management of the ocean drilling program and operation of the academic oceanographic fleet.

Watkins was instrumental in establishing the Consortium for Oceanographic Research and Education in September 1994 and became its president at that time.

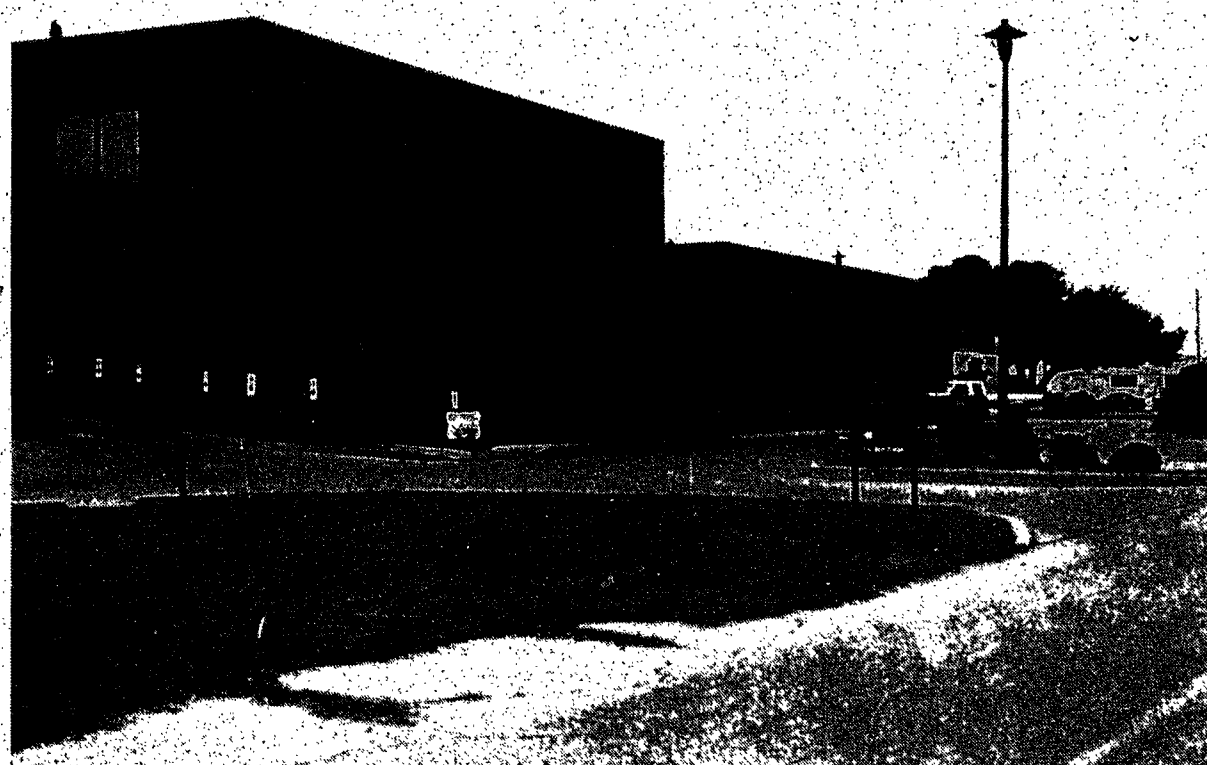

The consortium is a historic effort to create a partnership among all institutions, public and private, that make up the U.S. ocean science and technology community to advance knowledge and learning in the ocean sciences.

Watkins served as secretary of energy from March 1989 until January 1993.

A 1949 graduate of the Naval Academy, his Navy career spanned four decades capped by his appointment as the 22nd chief of naval operations in June 1982.

During his tour as Navy chief, Watkins helped implement a number of key initiatives by then-Navy secretary John Lehman to help "reinvigorate" naval oceanography. One of the initiatives was replacement of the Navy's aging oceanographic fleet.

This program is well underway. Some 10 ships have been completed or are under construction — all built in Mississippi at the Halter Marine Shipyard.

There were special performances by Barbara Tasker, a professional actress from Dillard University, and the Free Spirit Drummers and Dancers.

both of New Orleans; the Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity from the University of Southern Mississippi in Hattiesburg; the Afro-American Cultural Society Choir from Pearl River College; the drill team of the Pilgrim Bound Baptist Church and the
